SUPERVISOR COMMENTS

It was a hot Saturday and a very busy one as well. Officers handled several calls that took much of their time. The most time consuming consisted of a subject who was in the middle of the street, threatening to commit suicide. He had gotten into a verbal argument with his girlfriend at a local motel, then left the area. The argument was witnessed by a passerby, who called TPD. When officers contacted the girlfriend, he was sending her text messages that he was going to commit suicide. Officers found him in a different location and he would not speak to officers. He then exited his car and held a pocket knife up to his neck, threatening that he was either going to cut his own throat, or rush an officer and for an officer to shoot him. All units did a great job containing the subject and engaging him until he finally complied and dropped the knife.
